

SmartHealth Specialty Guide

How to use this guide

This guide helps patients choose a specialist for common symptoms. It is educational clinic information, not a diagnosis. If you have chest pain, trouble breathing, severe bleeding, or sudden weakness, seek emergency care instead of booking a routine visit.

Family medicine and general clinic

See family medicine for check-ups, mild fever, cough, cold, vaccinations, blood pressure follow-up, and routine lab orders. If you are not sure which specialist you need, start here. The clinician can refer you.

Cardiology

See cardiology for chest discomfort that is not an emergency, palpitations, known heart disease, high blood pressure that is hard to control, swelling in the legs, or follow-up after a heart procedure. Bring a list of heart medications and any recent ECG or echo reports.

Dermatology

See dermatology for rashes that last more than a week, acne that did not improve with pharmacy creams, moles that change shape or color, hair loss, or persistent itching. Take a photo of the rash if it comes and goes.

Orthopedics

See orthopedics for joint pain, sports injuries, back or neck pain after an injury, suspected sprain, or follow-up after a fracture. For sudden inability to move a limb or loss of feeling, go to emergency care.

Gastroenterology

See gastroenterology for ongoing stomach pain, heartburn, difficulty swallowing, unexplained weight loss, blood in stool, or follow-up for ulcer, IBS, or liver conditions. You may need fasting if a procedure is planned. Read the lab and procedure prep guide.

Endocrinology

See endocrinology for diabetes, thyroid problems, hormone-related fatigue, or abnormal lab results for glucose, HbA1c, or thyroid hormones. Bring your latest lab printout and a glucose log if you have one.

Pediatrics

Book pediatrics for patients under 18: well-child visits, vaccines, ear infections, growth concerns, and school physicals. A parent or guardian should attend. Use the same SmartHealth booking flow as adult visits.

Obstetrics and gynecology

See OB/GYN for pregnancy care, annual exams, menstrual problems, or contraception counseling. First prenatal visits should be booked as soon as pregnancy is known. Mention if you need a longer slot when you book.

Mental health

See behavioral health or psychiatry for anxiety, depression, trouble sleeping that lasts weeks, or medication review. This is not a crisis line. If you are in immediate danger, contact local emergency services.
